1. Remove the tooth your child left under his/her pillow and replace with:
 - Mischief’s letter [pgs. 2 – 4]
 - Confirmation of Receipt of Goods certificate [pg. 5]
2. Hide the clues in the appropriate locations around your house. There are two versions of each clue: a basic version with no missing words, and a more advanced version with a missing word to solve. Use whatever version suits your child best.
 - Hide clue 2 [pg. 6 or pg. 10] next to a sink (any sink in your house)
 - Hide clue 3 [pg. 7 or pg. 11] in your child’s shoe (any shoe)
 - Hide clue 4 [pg. 8 or pg. 12] by a door that leads outside
 - Hide clue 5 [pg. 9 or pg. 13] in your child’s school back pack
 - Hide the ToothLoot (the money you want to leave your child) next to your child’s toothbrush, along with his “Who might visit next time?” poem [pg.14]

You can skip a clue if it won’t work in your house. This is why they aren’t numbered.

Mischiefee

Hey,

I heard you lost a tooth. Boy, that's awesome. Keep it up, and you'll soon have a whole new set of munchers.

I know this is the first time we've met, so let me introduce myself. I'm Mischiefee, and I'm one of the tooth fairies that works at The Tooth Fairy Company.

I'm also a bit of a jokester. That's what the other tooth fairies tell me, anyway. I never do anything too mean, but I sure like to tease my friends.

One time, for example, I swapped out all of Bumblefee's polka-dotted socks with plain white socks. Now if you know anything about Bumblefee, you know that she ONLY wears socks with polka dots.

So you know what she did? She got out all of her markers and drew polka dots all over those white socks. Pretty clever. I have to admit, she got me there.

Mischief

Another time I put a dash of pepper in Smigglesfert's handkerchief. When he gets anxious or excited, which happens a lot, he always sneezes and then wipes his nose on his handkerchief.

Well, you can imagine what happened when he used the handkerchief with pepper in it. The more he wiped, the more he sneezed. In fact, he was still sneezing and wiping when I left to come to your house tonight.

You probably noticed by now that there's a Tooth Receipt under your pillow, but no ToothLoot. (ToothLoot, by the way, is the money we tooth fairies give you for your happy teeth.)

I was going to leave it there. But then, being the jokester I am, I thought, "Where's the fun in that?" I mean, you wait all this time to lose a tooth, and then — BAM!! — it falls out, we pick it up, and before you know it, the whole experience is over and all you have to show for it is what's under your pillow.

Now getting ToothLoot under your pillow is great. Don't get me wrong. But you know what's even better? ToothLoot you need to find. All on your own.

Mischiefee

That's right. I hid your ToothLoot and you have to locate it! Just figure out the clues and follow them where they take you.

What do you think? Are you up for the challenge? Then let's get started!
Here's clue #1.

Mischiefee

When your next tooth falls out, I hope to pop in on you again.
But if I'm not on the schedule, another tooth fairy will visit you then.

It could be singing Ariafee, or Flitterfee, if she follows through.
One time she went to pick up a tooth, but returned with a big red shoe.

Bumblefee might visit you also. She collects lots of things.
She eats frosted doughnuts and makes hundreds of teeth earrings.

And if they're all busy, Smigglesfert might drop by too.
He's a tooth fairy-in-training and a really big sneezer -- AH-CHOO!

No matter which one of us visits, we make it fun to lose a tooth.
Because we love being tooth fairies. That's no joke -- that's the truth!
